

WE NOMINATE

Marver Hillel Bernstein, able specialist in public and educational administration and teacher-writer of the front rank, who as the first Associate Director of Princeton's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs is playing a major role in charting fresh approaches to high-level education for public responsibility. To the 42-year old Bernstein and School Director Gardner Patterson jointly belongs the distinction of hammering through the conception of "Princeton Fellows in Public Affairs," the newly announced program which next September will enable nine Federal officials in mid-career to enter upon individually tailored programs of study.

While there is nothing startlingly novel in the idea of having public officials, businessmen and industrialists, bankers and even journalists "return" to college campuses for advanced training, the designation of the initial "Princeton Fellows"—following an exhaustive screening process—is but a single step in the development of professional education for the public service at a level of excellence comparable to the nation's outstanding schools of medicine and law. It is an integral part of the expansion of the Wilson School's post-graduate program made possible by last summer's dramatic announcement of the creation of Foundation "X" with anonymous grants totaling $35,000,000.

The interests, achievements and potential of the first crop of "Princeton Fellows" are suggestive of the capacities of this 43-year old native of Mankato, Minn., a Princetonian since 1946, chairman of the University's Department of Politics and in 1960-61 Ford Foundation Research Professor in Government. This past March, with Bernstein's elevation to his pivotal post, Patterson emphasized Bernstein's involvement in the Wilson School's graduate program since its inception in 1948, his experience on all levels of government, his professional interests, and his deep concern for the education of young men and women on the threshold of policy-making responsibilities in public affairs.

A consultant over the years to a number of Federal agencies, including the U.S. Bureau of the Budget and the Economic Stabilization Agency, and widely publicized for his contributions a decade ago to the Connecticut Commission on State Government Organizations, Bernstein is the kind of scholar whose knowledge and executive abilities are frequently tapped by government. He was, for instance, the lone non-lawyer singled out in 1960 as a member of the Organizing Committee for a permanent President's Conference on Administrative Procedure and twice in the 1950's was called to Israel as adviser on government administration to the Office of the State Controller.

Bernstein, among whose publications are numbered "The Job of the Federal Executive," "The Politics of Israel" and "American Democracy in Theory and Practice," the last a leading college text in American Government, helped make headlines in 1960 as Associate Staff Director of a "task force" sponsored by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York and concerned with "Federal Conflict of Interest Laws." This Special Committee called for a "thorough-going reconstruction of existing laws"—a program achieving a balance between the country's need for protection against conflicts of interest and its crying need for high-talent personnel.

For sensing the vast differences separating education for the profession of government from training in detailed management techniques; for helping launch such bold educational ventures as the Princeton Seminar in Washington which will meet periodically in Washington to consider important, continuing problems of public policy; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

FIREMEN STILL STRONG
After 240 years. When Acting Mayor William Walker told the volunteer firemen of Princeton, assembled for their annual inspection, that the days of the volunteer were numbered and that the future would see a paid fire department for Princeton, he was speaking of a tradition dating back to 1756. It is still strong and vital in the life of the community.

The 1756 unit was a student group. The three present fire companies date back to Civil War days. Today, in 1962, there are 150 volunteer firemen in Princeton, 50 each in Princeton Engine Company Number 1, Mercer Engine Company Number 3 and Hook and Ladder and Chemical Engine Number 1.

Princeton is given good service by its dedicated fire fighters. Insurance companies have found this to be eager, and often highly competitive volunteers of the smaller towns are often better at their jobs than the professionals, the frequently underpaid professional of the big cities.

For example, according to the Fire Insurance Rating Organization of New Jersey, the owner of a frame house in Newark, a city with a class A all-professional fire department,

THE VALUE OF THE PAST: heavy leather buckets, like the one at the far right, used to be the only means to carry water to a fire, and the firemen of Mercer Engine Company Number Three used to keep such buckets in their homes, ready for use. The old helmet belongs to another era, too, and the drum beneath—well, what's a fire company without a parade? (Staff Photo) ment, pays 16½ cents per $100 per year fire insurance on his home. In Princeton, the owner of a frame house pays 18 cents.

In the Township, where there is more open country to travel before reaching a fire, a frame house owner pays 2 cents more than his Newark cousin.

Old Stalwarts. The problems of fire fighting have, from the first attracted energetic and resourceful men. In 1768, the list of charter members of a new fire company included names still spoken in Princeton: Benjamin Olden, Isaac Snowden, Joseph Leigh, John Lane, John Harrison, John Hamilton, Isaac Hornor and Thomas Wiggins.

Firemen in those days were required to keep "in a conspicuous place in the home." Two leather buckets, one in a bag or basket—the buckets for water, the basket for small articles salvaged from the fire, and for salt to smother enclosed fires.

Men were fined a shilling for neglecting the repair of that bag and that bucket, and they could be fined as much as seven shillings for failing to show up at a fire.

For a time, the fire company used to say that firemen did not have to go to a fire unless a fellow member's house was burning. Non-members could so to speak, burn. However, this caused so much "general dissatisfaction" within Princeton, that the rule was hastily changed.

We Need Buckets! Equipment was hard to come by. In the early 1800's, the fire company asked the College of New Jersey for 35 more fire buckets. Eighteen months later, members began to be restive and asked, "Where are the buckets," but it was two years and three months after the first request before the buckets materialized.

Shortly after this the company made a deal with the College allowing it to use and direct the student brigade's fire engine in return for keeping it repaired and answering College calls. The money involved: 6 pounds, 16 shillings, 3 pence.

It was about this time that the firemen tried, with poor success, to discourage the student practice of lighting bonfires in Nassau Street.)

On New Year's Day, 1873, a frame building was destroyed by fire, and a spirited editorial in The Princeton "Whig" spoke out: "We have ample proof that talking alone will not stop the ravages of fire. This event should prove an additional spur to efforts to render our fire department more efficient."

Thirty years later, the problem still remained. "Number One Engine was there, but would not work," stated "The Standard" for September 22, 1866. "Old Number 3 engine was there and threw water on the flames, but at least half of the water leaked out of the good-for-nothing hose. The new engine was not taken, as it was deemed of little use without hose! Might as well have bought hose without engine."

Six years later, there was agitation for a fire alarm system based on a strong feeling that firemen should not have to exhaust their lungs yelling "fire!" when their energies might better be spent fighting the flames.

Borough Council took over the companies in 1874 and support came through taxes from then on, but the acquisition of new equipment and the building of new firehouses still brought out the community to celebrate.

Celebration! When a Engine Company Number 1 bought its new bell in 1885, they had a parade and a reception, and four teams of horses hauled the bell from the railroad station to Chestnut Street to the music of the Jutown Band.

When Hook and Ladder bought its new truck in 1899, the men marched, with the two engine companies and the stewart Princeton Fire and Drum Corps and the South Carolina Orphan Band, to the freight station to pick up an aerial hook and ladder with 2,000 feet of hose.

Firehouses have moved, but not much, with the passage of time. In 1967, Mercer Number 3 bought a lot on Chambers

What To Do If Fire Breaks Out

Borough residents should call Borough police WA 4-1141, and Township residents should call Township police, WA 4-3101, in case of fire.

If the fire is minor, police will send a patrol car which may radio back for a firetruck. If it is major, they will turn in the alarm between 6 p.m. and 7 a.m. for a home because there may be sleeping inhabitants during those hours. Firehouses at Borough police headquarters, ringing the two "fog horns" on the siren and alarm, and they will always turn in the alarm between 6 p.m. and 7 a.m. for a home because there may be sleeping inhabitants during those hours. Firehouses at Borough police headquarters, ringing the two "fog horns" on the siren and alarm, and they will always turn in the alarm between 6 p.m. and 7 a.m. for a home because there may be sleeping inhabitants during those hours.

Four sirens then blow automatically one each at the Tax Institute, Princeton High School, First National Bank and Borough Hall.

Firemen reaching their firehouse pick up the phone and are immediately connected to the Borough police desk. Even though they are in the firehouse, the fire is the coded signal is for firemen who can't get to their firehouse (assuming a car that won't start, etc.). All firemen who are alerted to go to the firehouse, thereby cutting down on the number of cars converging on a fire.

He will learn, too, that even when he is braced, he may be sprawling if there is ice under foot.

Much to learn. The hydraulics involved in pumping, the use of complex gauges and the care of hoses—all these are part of the rookie's curriculum.

There is a science to erecting and mounting a ladder safely and quickly, and the apprentice fireman must learn it. He must learn how hot a fire can be, and how to recognize how to put on his mask and probe through the dense smoke of a burning house searching under beds and in closets using only his sense of touch, for frightened victims of the fire.

For the first year, the rookie works ten paces back of the line of regular firemen, observing and helping. Sometimes the training goes on for two or three years, depending on experience and facility in learning.

The best training, of course, is a really big fire, but the men in the companies would rather have training longer and less intensive.

Once voted in and trained, a fireman stays, unless he actually moves away from Princeton. One of the oldest is Ernest F. Drake, 82, of Number 3. He has been in the company for 65 years, joining at a time when men could be under 21 and still be firemen. Mr. Drake still goes to fires. Retirement doesn't suit him.

Person To Person

We heard of a report in a book issue of the Ladies Home Journal that R. D. Young, the actor, said, "I'm self-made."

Cory S. Kimmeler man, but I think if I had to do it all over again, I'd call in someone else. This started us thinking about the many stories we've read about "self-made" men, about the guys who say, in effect, "I did it all on my own." Sometimes it may seem that way, but actually, does anyone ever really do it alone? If you think about it, it seems that somewhere along the line there is frequently a helping hand—sometimes so far behind the scenes that we aren't even aware of it. It may be a friend in the background, or a loved one, or perhaps even a combination of happy accidents that helps get the job done or the goal won. And we are reminded of the old adage that God helps those who help themselves. No, we can't really do it all alone, and it is our business to provide the friendly and reliable service when you need it, and our pleasure to be of help. Kammer Buick-Pontiac Co. LIGHT HOUSEKEEPING

DOCE By Borough Council. It was a cool summer evening Tuesday and the Mayor and Council attended to Borough housekeeping. Major issues were left under the carpet.

Robert F. Mooney, Borough clerk-controller, was named to the newly-created position of Borough administrator. The appointment, effective Sunday, clarified and broadened his responsibilities, lifting much detail work from the mayor's shoulders. (See story, page 16.)

Dr. Ellwood F. Godfrey told Mayor Henry S. Patterson, "I am appreciative of the time, effort and contribution that you and your predecessors have given to this job. It is high time that such assistance be given to the mayor. We have no idea of the requirements that you are fulfilling, the demands on your time away from your family. . . I really feel that anything that can be done to ease or help is well worthwhile."

Borough Engineer Arthur T. Brock reported that work on the Harriet Drive culvert for protection against Harry's Brook was temporarily stalled by the county. Robert S. Christie of 67 Harriet Drive, into whose garage the culvert flowed last year, hasn't missed a council meeting in months. He told the Council, "I'm going to call every day until I know when this will start." The mayor laughed and said, "You know, Mr. Christie, when this culvert is finished, we're going to miss you." "Maybe I'll be back," said Mr. Christie, "with something else."

The application of Sgt. John F. Petrone of the Township Police for the taxi license held by his late father was approved. Sgt. Petrone was acting in his mother's behalf. Councilman Walker noted.

Grotto License Set. The application for a liquor license by the Grotto Restaurant was approved. Owner Gabriel Pizenza was reminded by the mayor that "we depend upon licensees such as yourself to help police such a set-up as we have . . . enforcing the age limits and the other ABC laws."

"We advise you, as we did the other license holder last month, that we accept no excuses in these matters. You know the law."

Other household matters brought up included Councilman Godfrey's report that parking meter receipts, as of the end of June, are $1,000 less than as of a year ago. The fire department has had no general alarms in three months and there were no "still" alarms in June. Fire Chief Packer commented that "these inspections are paying off," and Dr. Godfrey added that the Borough's insurance rates are as low as it is possible to get with a volunteer fire department.

Chief Packer then went him one better with, "I think our fire department is as well equipped as the one in New York City!" The finance chairman rejoined, "I trust then, that you're not going to ask for any new equipment." The Chief laughed.

The meeting then swung to such items as a report on trees trimmed, plans to reconstruct a portion of Franklin Avenue, signs for the playgrounds clarifying hours and activities, and Officer Hunter's high average of 93 at the police training school in Segist.

No Lock-up For Ladies. A report on the Borough jail from Lloyd W. McCorkle of the Department of Institutions and Agencies was summarized by Mr. Walker. The inspectors, once again, found the facilities inadequate. They stated that the female unit was "non-existent."

Mayor Patterson noted that the report suggested that female prisoners be taken to the county jail in Trenton. "Your life would actually be tougher," he said, "if you were a female!"

Matters tabled pending further investigation included the survey on parking meters, a proposed ordinance adopting the state code for minimum housing requirement and the selection of "open space" sites in the Township.

The housework done, everybody fed.

LAND SALE APPROVED

By Choir College. The trustees of Westminster Choir College have approved the sale of 14 acres of college-owned land north of Franklin Avenue to the Borough Board of Education for use in developing an educational center around Princeton High School. Completion of the sale is contingent on approval by Borough and Township authorities of street alignments and other details connected with usage of the area by both the board and the college.

Dr. Lee H. Bristol, Jr., choir college president, said the sale was made with "great reluctance." He said this was "because of the extremely restrictive effect such a sale puts on

News Of The THEATRES

"THE ENTERTAINER"
Summer Season Opens
The Princeton Players' second season began bravely last Thursday night with John Osborne's "The Entertainer." The opening was postponed three days. The interest of a more polished performance, and from several points of view that adjective was poorly chosen. The principals in the cast turned in performances ranging from good to poor, and as an ensemble left much to be desired.

On the plus side is the theatre itself, where grease has been banished for greasepaint. In this production, the chairs, some hard, some padded, were arranged in tiers on three sides of the small setting of "The Entertainer," and through ingenious use of lighting, another setting of the music hall was created on an upper level. The entire technical staff deserves congratulations for the imagination and skill in turning a garage into an intriguing theatre.

In their choice of vehicles, the Players seem to be continuing last summer's policy of presenting mostly off-beat, little-known works, rather than the basic products which tend to fall apart in the hands of such a group. It is a sound policy as those who saw Jean Genet's "The Maids" (among others) in 1961 will testify.

However, the success of such ventures depends on the strength of a very few players. Unlike the two in the Genet play, Rod McManigal was not at home in the vital leading role, although he struggled valiantly to interpret the petty viciousness and small pathos of Archie Rice. He had more Archie larger than life, and as a result his portrayal aroused little sympathy. This lack was especially evident in the much handier characters where the chorus girls and Britanias were superfluous and the wrong kind of bad taste was dominant.

Peace Slow. "The Entertainer" has built-in disadvantages. It is a talky play and the product of a petulant rather than an angry young man. Part of the responsibility for the tired atmosphere and air of petulance here must rest with Fred Croton (director) and Paul Glickler (direction coordinator). The small-like pace, and the opening scene, set, and continued with few interludes for the almost three hours.

What liveliness there was can be attributed to Anthony Courtney (Bill Rice) and Mimi Parascheles (Phoebe). Both have strong good voices, and used them to good advantage. Mrs. Parascheles was particularly effective in her rantings, but her style was completely inconsistent with Mr. McManigal's low-keyed portrayal.

Alan Reaburn did well by Frank Rice, and his song in the third act put across asperly the despair and downfall-thee atmosphere of the play. Again the impact of his delivery put Mr. McManigal's music hall patter in the shade. Carrie Brown as Joan was almost inaudible in the first scenes and practically drowned throughout the play her failure as the author's mouthpiece threw the play off-balance and downgraded what little "message" there was to the vanishing point.

Despite these shortcomings, the evening was an interesting one, and 259 Nassau may very well be the location of polished as well as stimulating theatre in the ensuing weeks.

THEATRE TO OPEN
At Douglass, The Children's Summer Theatre of Douglass College will open its second season this Thursday with the production of "The Boy Who Sailed With a Windmill," by Edward Berkowitz, 12, son of Dr. and Mrs. Monroe Berkowitz, Crestwood Drive, Somerville, Ellipse, Fane, 14, will play Rip's wife. She is the daughter of Remigio Fane, 68, Lincoln Avenue, Highland Park.

Lowell Swartzell, assistant director of the Children's Summer Theatre, dramatized the Washington Irving story. C. F. Branch has designed the sets. Robert Treile has designed Dutch colonial costumes. Tickets are 75 cents each and may be reserved in advance by calling Charter 7-1766, ext. 7258.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY
When Making a Movie. In a midway office behind the last row of seats at the Playhouse, Richard Knight flipped the pages of his ledger. The manager of the Playhouse and the Garden had only one comment to make on Princeton moviegoers.

"The general public blasts sex pictures," he said, "but when you get a 'message' picture, they just don't patronize it." "St. Francis of Assisi" did so poorly that we pulled it out after four days. It was highly recommended by the Catholics, but it flopped all over the country. So did "Dog of Flanders."

"On the other hand, 'La Dolce Vita' did very well," he said. The three-hour Italian film raged through murder, suicide, decadence and mockery of formalized religion.

A reviewer straddled the fence: "This is either a penetrating revelation of soul sickness in modern life," he wrote, "or sheer sensationalism that is shocking, immoral or worse." "Dolce" was a hit in Princeton and everywhere else.

Box Office Successes. Other profitable movies, from the box office point of view, were "The Children's Hour," about latent lesbianism; "Odd Obsession," involving impotency; "Psyche," and "Walk on the Wild Side."

KNIGHT AT THE MOVIES: Richard Knight, manager of the Playhouse and the Garden, has been an insider at the movies ever since his student days at Duke University where he served as an usher in the college moviehouse. The public's taste, he says, is written in red and black ink on the ledgers. Story, this page.

set in a New Orleans house of prostitution. There were more women than men in the audience at "Walk."

About equally successful were "The World of Suzie Wong," the hearted street-walker; "Pepton Place," "Sweet Bird of Youth," Tennessee Williams' angry, sordid and bitter view of the south; "Cape Fear," and "The Hustler," which starred Paul Newman. Anything starring Newman is a winner, Dick Knight says. The blood-and-thunder drama "Sink the Bismarck!" did so well that it was brought back for second showing for the Saturday matinee audience.

The British comedies such as "Carry On, Nurse," are the second category. Behind them are the French comedies — "The Five-Day Lover," drew a big audience. "Please Don't Eat the Daisies," from the Jean Kerr book, and "A Majority of One," starring Alex Guinness and Rosalind Russell did well. Continued on Page 8

It is almost a foregone conclusion that anything with Roz Russell in it will draw a good audience," Dick Knight commented.

Few Family Pictures Succeeded. One of the best attended family pictures was a Fred MacMurray comedy, "The Apartment," which he missed his own wedding three times. "Swiss Family Robinson" brought out a crowd and so did young Hayley Mills in "The Parent Trap." But the list is short.

The most successful films ever shown at Princeton theatres, however, combined extremely sophisticated love stories with comedy, and pre-showing publicity. "Country Girl" with Grace Kelly and Bing Crosby in the leads, broke all attendance records. It ran through was "Love Come Back," starring Doris Day and Rock Hudson. "Breakfast at Tiffany's" featuring Audrey Hepburn "pulled well." Mr. Knight said Publicity surrounding the filming of these movies played a potent part in their success, which bodes well for the investors in "Cleopatra."

"The Misfits," drew the most curious reaction from Princeton audiences. The film, written by Arthur Miller, was star-heavy with such box office names as Clark Gable and Marilyn Monroe. Princeton people came in droves to see it, but "we had more walk-outs on this than

Actors' Revolt

What is an actor without a playwright? Pirandello's "Tonight We Improvise," which explores this theme, will be presented by the Princeton Players Tuesday through Saturday at 259 Nassau Street.

Angel Alexander plays the lead in this drama about the revolt of actors from formal restrictions of playwright and director. A serious play, with moments of very humor, it was produced with much success by the Living Theatre last season in New York. It forms the last part of Pirandello's trilogy on the theatre. Paul Glickler, summer producer for the Players, will direct.

Others in the cast will be George Nestor, Lynn McGrath, Virginia de Angelis and Don Marial.

I ever remember seeing in 23 years in the picture business," Dick Knight said. "I kind of think they didn't understand the story—in general, it was an unpleasant story. I also think that because it was Gabie's last picture had a lot to do with it."

An off-beat note is the success of the grand opera series held at the Garden during January and February.

"Who goes to the movies?" The Playhouse audience ranges in age from 16 to about 35 years. At the Garden, where the foreign and "art" films play, the moviegoers are a little older.

As for Dick Knight, a graduate of Duke University and a former World War II sergeant in the 1960s Coast Artillery Artillery, he's at the movies six nights a week. For recreation, he turns on the late, late show.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Mr. Hobbs Takes A Vacation July 11-17. Jimmy Stewart, Maureen O'Hara and Fabian star in this story of a family's wild vacation at the beach. Miss O'Hara, as pretty as ever, overrides the desire of her husband, wonderfully portrayed by Stewart, for a holiday for two and rents a bungalow for the entire family, which also includes two married daughters, their respective husbands and offspring, as well as their 13-year-old daughter, Lauri Peters, and their youngest child, Michael Burns. The confusion mounts through the charming humorist, Reginald Gardiner, and Valeri Varda, who portrays a beach siren in pursuit of a Russian. Comment: slick comedy.

Advice and Consent July 19-24 is based on the concept that politics is a unavailing battleground, peopled by rugged individuals. Producer Otto Preminger has emphasized the dramatic interplay of personalities in the President's battle to force acceptance by the Senate of his nominee for Secretary of State. New Fontana is a calm, restrained Leftingwell, Charles Laughton leads the opposition as the vengeful southern senator, and Walter Pidgeon puts in an excellent performance as straightforward majority leader.

IT'S NEW To Us

1700'S SET THE STYLE
For 1962 Shoppers. North of Princeton on the Flemington traffic circle is the Granetz Furniture Store, an establishment consisting of 10,000 square feet of colonial furniture, and that's probably more than you could have found in all of Princeton in colonial times.

The Granetz people are particularly proud of the fact that all for pieces in this shop are solid woods, without a trace of veneer. Cherry, maple, mahogany and beech are in a price range that starts with "medium low" and goes on to "moderately high" and if you want to know what those terms mean, we can offer for pieces in the bedroom suite at $189 consisting of chest-on-chest, double dresser with mirror and panel bed.

Within the shop, you'll find Hitchcock, Pennsylvania House, Cushman, Drake Smith, Thomasville chair and Simmons for bedding.

Granetz interprets the term "colonial" generically to mean informal rural pieces, and offers in this category such unusual presentations as a rural English-style bedroom ensemble made of a rich, light pecan executed with cane headboard. The wardrobe, with drawers below, the end tables and the dressers have a pleasant massiveness that we recommend them to housewives whose husbands groan at slim-lined, feminine furniture.

Another pecan-wed bedroom set, this one by Thomasville, has a chest-on-chest and a long dresser with mirror designed with such clean, uncluttered classic lines that they will still be in style and taste 25 years from now. For a guest room, Granetz suggests a correlated group in maple consisting of a high-back bookcase, lowered door cabinets and corner dressing table or desk, all of which can be matched, and arranged as a family moves from house to house.

A little girl would love to have a room with a low-priced, solid cherry tester bed with ruffled canopy, and perhaps a small wing chair to match, covered with a bright calico print.

Upholstered furniture in the colonial manner comes in many sizes these days, and you may have a sofa that is 54 inches long, or a splinted one 96 inches long to hold the whole Continental Congress. La-Z-Boy makes a colonial chair, too, did you know?

On the dining side, Granetz has a series of solid maple sets, many with a solid "maple" top. Actually, the top is an inch-thick circle of solid plastic, so much like maple you can almost see the syrup. A great advantage for kitchen use, as you can see.

Accessories in this Colonial establishment include small candle-holders, lamps, gun reproductions for the wall, ashtrays and the painted incidental furniture done by Pennsylvania House. Ever consider solid maple dining-room table and chairs, with a Pennsylvania House hutch done in, say, a rich, glowing red to show off your collectors' choice?

For Sabbath Shoppers

At Granetz, the furniture store on the Flemington Circle, the door is open on Sundays from 12:30 to 6 p.m. for the convenience of shoppers who may be circling the circle at that time. As you will discover in the adjacent column, this store sells only colonial furniture and it pleases our fancy to wonder what the good colonists and the good colonial craftsmen would think about a shop that is open on the Sabbath. mm camera which is fully automatic and priced for less than $40, as you will see upon a stop at the Photography and Art Center, 100 Nassau.

The camera has a 38-mm wide-angle lens, flash synchronization, fingertip zone focusing, 1/250th shutter speed and a stop and go light signal that restrains the finger on the shutter button if no light shows. Set the camera at the ASA number, and the camera will automatically adjust to the light at hand.

Nikkorex F, a single lens reflex, has a lens in the same quality bracket as the Nikon F. Equipped with an all-metal shutter, it has a depth of field preview button and costs less than $200.

If vacation lies ahead for you, Photography and Art recommends the Bell and Howell movie camera with zoom lens and electric eye, for under $100.

De Jur makes that intriguing half-frame camera, the Petri, which will take 72 pictures on a 36-picture roll. Excellent for travelers, as you can see, it has an f2.8 lens, 1/250 shutter speed, and will take color slides or black and white pictures. The cost, under $40, is as compact as the little camera itself.

On the art side, Photography and Art has the Carbonele pastel drawing pencils, to be bought singly, in—Continued on Page 8

THE GARDEN

The Cabinet of Caligari (July 11-17) has elements of weirdness and horror and may well be considered the "Psycho" of 1922. Strictly for adults, the film contains daring dialogue, interogations and shocking depiction of clinical references to sexual behavior.

Glynis Johns portrays Jane a woman under psychoanalysis, and Dan O'Herry is Dr.
Caligari. His unusual make-up and change of character interprets a schizophrenic personality into the mystifying developments of the film. The famous old masterpiece of horror, brought here from Germany 40 years ago, is a fascinating study in "articulate surrealism," particularly as Jane is made to suffer the pangs of memory. Comment: horrifying.

It did July 18-31) is a super spectacle. It interprets the story of the Cid, famed warrior of Eleventh Century Spain. The photography is magnificent.

Charles Heston portrays the valiant hero in his usual grand style, this time highlighted by a poignant love theme involving beautiful Sophia Loren. There are several exciting battle scenes between the Moors and the Spanish.
But the color camera work is most impressive, in many instances giving the feeling of witnessing the unfolding of a series of beautiful paintings by old masters. Comment: beautiful escapism.

NEED DECOR?

Try Regent. A complete interior design and decoration service is available to customers who shop at the Regent
Furniture Store on Main Street in Somerville, and if you plan to decorate this fall, look over the tremendous variety of style at Regent, and then sit down with their decorator to talk over plans.

Drexel, Heritage, Henredon, Hickcock, Karastan, Bigelow, Stiffel, Selig—these are some of the furniture, carpet and accessory names you will find in the sleek Somerville store.

We looked at a magnificent 9-foot-long sofa, slim as a needle, with cylindrical cushions tucked in at each end, narrow arms and a fabric of marbled stripes in dark, green, brown and oyster.

In contrast, there is a delicate little loveseat with two narrow back cushions, and swags of wood between the arm spindles.

Recent suggests, for a coffee table, a circle of dark glass, covering fragments of black and silver lace, the circle mounted on square brass supports. For a baroque interior, there is a four-foot candlestick, deeply wrought of antique brass and designed to stand by the most imposing piece of furniture.

One of the most dramatic planters we've seen is the brass brazier over two feet in diameter resting beneath a thin-shaded perforated brass shade that hangs from the ceiling by a chain.

Upstairs at Regent, there are such delicacies as an antiqued bedroom group, graceful as a Fragonard, and a small walnut dictionary stand for that corner by the fireplace.
Many of the pieces have been set against backgrounds designed by the decorators on Regent's staff, so you can see for yourself how furniture and decoration can be worked out in harmony.

Dear Princeton:

Three fourths of our tour is over! It seems like such a long time since we left Princeton on that hot June afternoon. In some ways, it is hard to resist how far away we are—after jet flight was so quick and we are living with so many far friends. But when we get mail from home or get lost in the middle of a strange corner then we feel we are far removed from our families.

One of the consequences of the trip—we have heard no news for about a month. It will take some time to catch up with all that has happened in the world. Another result—the chaperones have lost at least ten years and Mr. Hilbish at least 20. It's great!

Last Friday, June 28, we took an indirect route, stopping for museums and cathedrals along the way, and drove from Karlsruhe to Freiburg. That night in the new Auditorium Maximumum, we gave our first concert consisting entirely of Webern. The audience was so thrilled with our performance and the opportunity to hear Webern that, for an encore, we repeated both Webern Cantatas. When we finally left the hall, the applause was still thundering and the noise from the fans hanging on the tables (a sign of approval here!) was deafening. All the Choir was on high spirits. People came to us afterwards to compliment us on the performance and to praise Jill Freeman's German. She made all the personal introductions when we sang to German audiences.

Saturday our time was completely free except for lunch at Dattler's—a restaurant situated on a hill with a beautiful view of the town of Freiburg.

Sunday, July 1, was our most spectacular day so far. Early in the morning, we left Freiburg and Germany and went into Switzerland. We stopped for a few minutes in Basel and in Bofingen.

Bofingen is a quaint old town with narrow streets but when we got there it was bedecked with hundreds of colorful flags and filled with boisterous students who looked as if they were left over from our first tour. It turned out that an "inter-Carten" track meet was being held there that day.

We stopped for about ten minutes by the lake in Lucerne and then went onto the Alps. As the mountains began to appear on both sides of the road, the excitement of all of us increased.

By the time we had reached the cog-wheel train and started up "our" mountain, Rothorn Kulm, (7,700 feet) we were all so thrilled we often burst out into laughing or singing. But when we reached the top, we were quiet with the overwhelming view spread out around us.

The air was cold and brisk and each of us felt he could go out and conquer the world. At night, the valley and lake below were lit by little diamonds of light scattered over the countryside. If you stood quietly, you could hear the echoes of the cow bells.

Next morning, the sunrise and the appearance of a range of snow-covered mountains were even more impressive. The whole panorama was so magnificently beautiful that none of us wanted to leave.

That Monday was the Hilbish's 12th wedding anniversary. Gretchen Ward, for the choir members, called ahead and ordered a cake at Brunnen, to celebrate the occasion. The Hilbishes seemed really touched and delighted with the surprise.

That same Monday afternoon, the Choir was dispersed into homes at Zurich for two nights. By then, we could really appreciate a warm bath and a comfortable bed. Though we had loved the mountains and the weather had been beautiful, it was too cold, and the beds were hard as rock.

They held ten people and the divisions were indicated

Two Reactions to PHS Choir Performances

Two reactions to performances given in Europe by the Princeton High School Choir have been sent to TOWN TOPICS. One is the comment of Dr. Jan Sicking, vice-director of the State Conservatory of the Hague, and head of its department for the training of teachers of music in higher places of learning.

Dr. Sicking wrote:

"After having listened to the second part of the concert of yesterday evening, I cannot refrain from giving expression to my admiration for what the Princeton High School Choir achieved. The Buxtehude cantata beat Bach's Magnificat as far as the Choir's euphonic qualities are concerned. But the achievement in Webern's cantatas is incredible. 'Purity of tone, accuracy of intonation, musical texture, stylistic understanding—it was all excellent. Such an appearance makes it impossible for everyone in Europe who has heard the Choir, would like to thank those many people who made the Choir's trip possible. The students in the Choir are our finest diplomats abroad and belong to an organization in which we should take special pride.'

The second report came from Jack Wenzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin J. Wenzel, 157 Shady Brook Lane, who is studying this summer at the Kepler Gymnasium in Freiburg, Germany, as a member of the Choele School Summer German Study Group.

His letter:

To the Editor of Town Topics:
As a student of Princeton High School living in Freiburg, Germany, for the summer, I had the great fortune to hear the PHS Choir sing here at the Albert-Ludwigs University on June 28. The Choir sang two Webern cantatas, which were received so favorably that the Choir was asked to sing both again, as encores.

I would like to take the opportunity to say that America, and Princeton in particular, should be especially proud of a choir which can perform almost impossible Webern with such accuracy and interpretation as our choir did Friday night. On behalf of everyone in Europe who has heard the Choir, would like to thank those many people who made the Choir's trip possible. The students in the Choir are our finest diplomats abroad and belong to an organization in which we should take special pride.

A TOSSED SALAD
From Princeton Players. A collection of escapes from Endless-Under-Glass came to Nassau Street Tuesday in a frenetic farce, written by Lachiche and Delacour late in the last century. The Players claim these are the first performances of "Tols of Money" in English—and lively is the word for the translation, direction and acting.

Leo Cohen heads the capable cast whose antics are on a high level of hilarity. His is a masterful portrayal of a man from the country who seeks to live by his wits in the wicked, wicked city of Paris. He handles the comic bits of business with complete assurance.

Among those working with Mr. Cohen in supporting the Princeton audience to the never-never land of unlikely-humors are George Nestor, Angelis Alexandris, Virginia de Angelis, Lynn Milgrim and Geoffrey Berne. They have been playing cards (bridge?) for a year at a frame a round, and have amassed almost 500 francs (and 18 buttons).

The vote is to spend it in Paris, where most of the action takes place—and action it is. At the restaurant, the crucial final scenes on the menu are covered by the frame, and following strenuous objections to the amount of the bill, the group is escorted to prison by a gendarme (James Keels) and cross-examined by minister-looking, green-colored police commissioner (William Terry).

The attempted escape is one of the highlights of the play with flying plaster from offstage and Miss Milgrim's wide-eyed remark, "We're locked in!" All ends well, of course.

Cast Excellent. The entire cast handles the borderline comedy with skill. Mr. Alexandris does a superb job of combing his hair without a mirror and adjusting his viceroy dupuis with a "health belt." Don Marlatt plays the would-be farmer with finesse; and Shirley Kaufman as the marriage broker combines the proper amounts of greediness and romance. Miss de Angelis' tele-tele with Mr. Terry comes off beautifully, and Sherman Hawkins' portrayal of the waiter is a masterpiece. An imaginative "frame" set (whose joints should last through Saturday) is changed for five different scenes with skill, and the period costumes are well chosen. The direction and staging by Fred Craton is uniformly coherent. If such a word can be used about this slapstick piece.

Not only are Princeton audiences privileged to have "Tols of Money" here in English, but they can no longer see it in French. Andre Malraux has banished Lachiche works from STORYTELLERS FROM THE EAST: Henry Chang, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. Chang of Mt. Lucas Road, was one of nearly 300 children enchanted by the storytellers who appeared at the playgrounds. The program, sponsored by the Asia Committee of the Children's Section of the public library, will continue until the end of July.

The Comedie Francaise repertoire is too frivolous to compete with the French classics. A trip to the Players' France is recommended for an evening of light gaiety. Performances will be given through Saturday.

300 PARTICIPATE

In Asian Program. Some 300 children took part in the first week of storytelling of the Princeton Public Library's Asian Summer Program. They came from as far away as Pennington, Hopewell and Kingston.

The first week featured stories from Indonesia, Thailand, Turkey, India, Iran, Japan and Pakistan. Storytellers were Mrs. William Bauer, Mrs. Janet Behrend, Mrs. Nicholas Costa, Mrs. Virginia Disantis, Mrs. James Moore and Mrs. Bani Shorter.

Storytellers for this week include Miss Helen Hoadley, Mrs. J. Cuyler Young and B. Alison Waring. Children helping with the program are Catherine Hiebert, Wendy Oldham, Marlar E. Ian, Shephali Shorter and Betsy She. All members of the Library's Asia Committee.

FRIENDS ORGANIZE

To Support Library. The

The Friends have donated $50 for equipment to check and maintain the films and to publicize the new library service. They have authorized Mr. A. L. Keiser, Jr., chairman of the publicity committee, to develop a series of film-strips describing the activities and plans of the library itself.

The Friends have scheduled their first full meeting for October 18. So far, there have been ten council meetings. Five working committees have been set up and the group has conducted drives for money and membership. Receipts are currently about $2400. Henry S. Dyer is chairman of the new.

DR. HOLT ON STAFF

Of Hospital. Dr. Alfred T. Holt has been appointed chairman of the Department of Anesthesiology at Princeton Hospital. He is the first anesthesiologist to serve on the hospital's medical and dental staff.

Dr. Holt will coordinate the activities of the department, which is staffed by trained nurse-anesthetists. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College and received his medical degree from Dartmouth-Cornell University Medical School.

He has been an instructor in surgery (Anesthesia) at the Dartmouth Medical School and was director of the School of Nurse-Anesthetists at Mary Hitchcock Hospital, Hanover, N. H. He is a member of the International Anesthesia Research Society.

NEW MAN IN TOWN
PHS Principal Makes Plans.
On graduation night at Mount Pleasant High School in Delaware (two young rehels handed their principal into a corner. "This is for you," they said, and handed him a plaque. On it, the somewhat astounded recipient read, "From the WORST in the BEST."
The award winner was Kenneth E. Michael, who this month plunged into his new job as principal of Princeton High School. The story of the plaque had been told to Dr. Chester R. Stroup by the Mount Pleasant superintendent of schools. It supplied a clue he'd been looking for: two boys whom Mr. Michael had been forced to discipline constantly were sufficiently appreciative of the end result that they expressed their feelings in permanently engraved form.

Mr. Michael had barely had time to tour the building and shake a few hands when he was asked about his experiences with high school students.
"You have to realize that they're adults," he said, setting into his unfamiliar office. "They have the same intelligence, the same emotions—the only difficulty is that they haven't had the experience." His blue eyes glinted with humor as he added, "They haven't been through the whole miserable business."
He tilted back in his chair and went on, "I don't quite know how to express this—but when a problem with a student comes up, well, I'm on his side."

A LOOK AHEAD: Kenneth E. Michael, new Princeton High School principal, took time this week to discuss some of his plans for the coming year.
"I want to help him work it out. And it's great when I sense the students recognize this. When a student is frustrated, unhappy, and as a result a disciplinary problem, he's usually in the wrong course. It's either too hard or too easy for him."
World War II Veteran. Mr. Michael, who saw action in the tank corps during World War II under General George "Old Blood and Guts" Patton, made a frontal attack on the algebra problem at Mount Pleasant. It was a simple question of tactics. He divided a year's work into eight units and no student went on to Unit II until he'd passed the test for Unit I.
"You can't solve equations with two unknowns if you can't work with one unknown," he said. "Most pupils can pass algebra, but not all in the same amount of time. Some take a year and a summer, some a year and a half. A student is guaranteed a 'C' and on the transcript we recorded the number of weeks he required to pass the course."
"This basic theory could be applied to mathematics, some sciences and courses where each unit depended upon the preceding unit for success. I don't know enough about the situation here to be able to say that the unit theory would be applicable. This is not an across-the-board theory of education."

At the same time that he slowed down the algebra course for some he helped others sprint ahead. Twenty seniors completed the college freshman course in calculus and analytical geometry this past June. Another group had charged ahead in languages.
Marks Rated in Points. He also met another dilemma head on. "Parents are justified in their concern," he said two years ago at the national convention of secondary school principals, "when a student in a top ability section receives a 'C' and a student in a low ability section receives a 'B'." The marking system adopted at Mount Pleasant based class rank on an accumulation of points during the four high school years. Under the point system, an "A" equaled five points, a "B" four points and so forth in each section. But the top section had a multiplying factor of six, the middle groups five, and the low sections four. Thus a student in the top section could acquire 30 points by receiving an "A" (five points) times the factor of six for his ability group. The plan had the general effect of raising by one letter the grades of top students and lowering by one letter the slower students.

But Kenneth Michael, full of vitality as he is, will take a long look before he proposes innovations at the high school. "It's too soon," he commented, "to know whether any changes should be made here at Princeton. I plan to meet each department chairman before the opening of school so that they can orient me as to each individual department. I want to know how the Princeton program might differ from that I have known in the past."
He and Mrs. Michael, their books still unpacked, have moved into the Nassau Arms apartments. His wife will teach fourth grade in Ewing Township this fall.
"I feel that we're fortunate to be here," he said, and flashed a million dollar smile.

DEATH STALKED AT ROCKY HILL: Onlookers at the Millstone River are tense as rescuers attempt to pull Stanley Huzessa, 41, of Perth Amboy, and his son onto the rocky bank beyond the spillway. The near-tragedy occurred Saturday afternoon. The father had reached the teenager midstream, but the struggling boy dragged him under. Two unknown swimmers used an inflated inner tube to help bring them to the shore. At that point, Arthur Cocchillo, James Cravetto and Otto Young of the Rocky Hill Rescue Squad arrived and administered oxygen. The boy recovered immediately. The father was taken to Princeton Hospital, treated for submersion, and released. (Staff Photo)

Budget Figures Corrected.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
In your July 8-14 issue, I read "Both the Boy and Girl Scouts received recommended increases, the Boys for $10,414, up from $9,380 and the Girls for $6,820, up from $5,500." We understand that mis-information was inadvertently furnished you on the Girl Scout budget figures, but we feel a correction should be made.

The facts the Girl Scout request was for $3,750, the recommended grant was for $3,400. The Girl Scouts' only other sources of income are the cookie sale ($698 net for 1961) and camp fees ($18 net for 1961).

It would be erroneous to recommend Girl Scouting on a basis of being "the cheapest thing going" in girls' programs. The high quality of Girl Scouting is, however, sufficiently familiar, we believe for us to be able to take pride in Princeton's low dollar cost. We are particularly fortunate here in having an unusual number of unusually well qualified volunteers to bring nothing to the girls of Princeton. While the national trend toward increased professional services (and resultant increased costs, will no doubt eventually impact upon us, we are presently and justifiably proud of a year-round program for 446 girls, guided by 190 adults, toward a life of community service, international friendship, and a com-protection and an appreciation of nature through campcraft and outdoor living experience.

OPENINGS REMAIN

In Same Y Teen Classes. Openings are still available in classes for teenage boys and girls, according to Larry Ivan, district program supervisor for the Princeton YMCA. Among them are coed classes in bridge and golf, available Monday and Tuesday evening; a band program, and softball. Also, tennis classes on Thursday from 7 to 8 and trampolines classes, three days a week. Full information is available at the Y office.

BUFFET SUPPER GIVEN

To Mark Anniversary. A buffet supper was given to celebrate the 25th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Blydenburgh of 75 Moran Avenue. The affair took place at the American Legion Home, Post 76, on Mercer Street with 75 guests present.

Mr. Blydenburgh is retired after 34 years of service at the U. S. Post Office, and Mrs. Blydenburgh is connected with the N. J. Bell Telephone Company in Pennington. Their daughter, Peggy Jane, is a junior at Princeton High School and Thomas J., their son, is a second class E M Petty Officer in the U. S. Navy stationed in California.

SPEED SIGNS TESTED

For Use On Turnpike. New electronically-controlled and changeable speed signs are being tested on the New Jersey Turnpike. The test is being made at Hightstown, milepost 70, southbound.

The sign is five feet wide by five feet high and has the word "speed" in 12-inch black lettering on a white panel, with the speed numbers just below. The speed on the Turnpike, 60, will be white or green.

son. As traffic conditions change the speed signs will be changed by means of the new radio control system from 20 to 55 miles, and are delineated by 23 50-watt bulbs. The signs may also be changed manually.

The intention of the speed sign is to give a more uniform flow of traffic through all traffic conditions. Under present conditions, speeds on the Turnpike are changed manually by the State Police on signs placed five miles apart. Also at the present time, there are only two speeds used, 35 for adverse weather conditions and 80 for normal conditions. The sign, visible from a distance of about 1,200 feet and hence more legible than the present speed signs, will be able to regulate traffic flow at any speed desired.

CHOIR CONCERT SET

For This Tuesday. The South Brunswick Choral will hold a summer sing at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the parish house of Griggstown Reformed Church. Seymour Weinstein will conduct the Faure "Requiem" and other works. Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

New "TELSTAR" relays phone calls and TV pictures for first time!

New Jersey scientists play key role in developing Bell System's active communications satellite

The world's first private enterprise communications satellite is now being used for dramatic experiments in relaying telephone calls and television internationally.

Its name, Telstar, it was launched from Cape Canaveral at Bell System expense by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The satellite was built at a special Bell Laboratories plant in Hillsdale, New Jersey—underwent testing at Bell Labs in Murray Hill and Whippany—and the signals transmitted via Telstar from the ground station at Andover, Maine were picked up by the huge horn antenna at Bell Labs in Holmdel, New Jersey.

Telstar amplifies and transmits signals beamed to it from one ground station to another—perhaps an ocean away. The new satellite makes it possible for voices, TV pictures and data messages to leap thousands of miles in a new and exciting way.

Telstar is a major experimental step toward the world-wide satellite communications system first proposed as a practical venture at Bell Telephone Laboratories. Progress toward such a system would not have reached its present state without continuing research and development by the private communications industry.

Above all else, Telstar is the latest achievement in an unending Bell System quest—the search for ways to make your telephone service still better, more economical, and more useful.

Question of the Week

Question: Do American men make a mistake in going to their wives for serious advice, as a European has suggested?

Where asked: Around town

Howard Grant, Plainsboro, carpenter: No, that's one of the objects of being married. Marriage is a 50-50 deal. I know I wouldn't go out and buy a house, for example, without my wife looking at it. A man just can't go ahead and do everything his way. Two heads are better than one.

James Mehl, Lincoln Highway, Kingston, carpenter: No, I don't think so. I agree that marriage is a 50-50 proposition. It just doesn't work out for a man to make all the rules and decisions.

Samuel Chisolm, 207 Calhoun Street, Trenton, auto negotiator for Turney Motors: Yes, I feel they are making a mistake. I feel men should depend on their own judgment or that of another man's.

Mrs. Arlene Miller, 129 Washington Road, school psychologist: My feeling is that serious discussion should be made by both the husband and wife, especially if it affects both of their lives. I feel they can be happiest if they make decisions together. I think the concept of the dumb, silent wife is going out of style even in Europe.

Francis Bellaire, Pretty Brook Road, chauffeur: That depends on what is being discussed. For example, in buying a home, that is the woman's domain. They know more about it than a man does. But I feel in most of the decisions, the men should decide for themselves. That is the way it is in Europe and I feel that is the best way.

Louis Carnevale, 26 Harris Road, electronic technician: As a European, I would agree that men should make all the major decisions. I don't say men shouldn't consult with their wives but the final decision should be theirs.

Mrs. Jane Ranallo, Quaker Road, housewife: I think this is a 50-50 proposition so why shouldn't they come to their wives for serious advice. They have as much say as the men do. The majority of the wives do in this country, anyway.

Solomon E. Quila, Princeton Seminary student: Oh, I don't think so. Marriage is a partnership and it is justifiable for men to seek advice from their wives, not so much for a solution but for an opportunity to let the wives offer whatever help they can. I believe a wife is a partner in life and should be given a chance to know what problems are confronting her husband and also be able to share in arriving at a solution. I believe that being a partner in life, wives ought to be able to have their finger in the pie, so to speak. Psychologically, I think it would give them a feeling of being important in their relationship with their husbands. In fact, that alone is enough for husbands going to their wives for advice. It shows you trust her and it would ease the tension of having to bear a problem alone. One of the observations I have made of the countries of the West, particularly the United States, is this equality between husband and wife in marriage which is absent in the Orient, and which, I feel, strengthens a marriage so much.

Mrs. Lewis McKay, Plainsboro, housewife: No, I don't think they do. I think it is a lot easier on the husband if he can go to his wife. It helps take away tension. It makes it a little easier for him to share his problems. I know I like to go to my husband when I have a decision to make. I feel much better talking it over with him.

Pat Romano, Altamaw Avenue, Trenton, shoemaker, Center Shoe Repair: Yes, I think so. Each man should have the right to make his own decisions. I feel that is the best way. Make the decision and then let the woman follow.

Paul Hollander, Spruce Street, graduate student, sociology: No, I don't feel it is a mistake. They are presumably trying to share in the solutions of their major problems. This doesn't mean that wives should acquire a preponderance in decision-making, of course. That would also be rather unhealthy. But on major decisions, consultation with wives is desirable.

Miss Elizabeth Stewart, 279 Franklin Avenue, statistical assistant at ETS: Nope. I think most of their decisions will affect their wives and I feel a wife should have a chance to share in anything that affects her, either directly or indirectly. Wives should have a chance to speak their piece.

Chris M. Meadows, Princeton University, graduate student: No, I think not. I think in the modern situation the wife is usually considered as mature as the husband. I personally go to my wife for advice. We consult on all problems of the family. I think this is a product of contemporary society. I agree that 50-60 years ago the role of the wife was not as dominant as it is today but I don't feel this equality and going to my wife for advice threatens my role either as a male or as a husband. I feel she can look at my opinions with the perspective of a person of the opposite sex.

William Bailey, Forestral Research Center, technician: Well, I don't think American men go to their wives as much as they create sort of a family council situation. If something affects the entire family financially, educationally or in some other way, they will discuss the thing together. If it is a spur of the moment situation, where you need an immediate decision, there is no time for consultation, then I feel man should maintain his legal, head-of-the-household authority and make the decision. Psychologically, I think all men expect their wives to look up to them.

NEW TITLE, MORE WORK
Borough Needs 8-Day Week
A new hat has been ordered for Robert P. Mooney, 41, Borough clerk-comptroller. He was scheduled to be named to the top post of Borough Administrator at this Bureau's suggestion of Mayor and Council.
This will give him clear title the "hook" of Borough officialdom—although at times it seems as though he's at the vortex of a whirlpool.

"It isn't even quiet around here in July and August any more," he said the other day, between phone calls. "And we're short of help—one of the girls is out sick."
The auditors are floating around somewhere. I got in early this morning to close out the cash books and I've just finished a rough draft of the minutes of the Council meeting Now I have to...
The phone rang again.

"That was the Engineer's office about the explosion at the sewer plant," he said five minutes later. "The insurance adjuster called a while ago."
"Now where was I? Well, I've been with the Borough since March 1946. I was made Clerk in January 1948. So I suppose I know a little bit about what goes on here."

The phone took over again. This time it was the mayor. Then Councilman Walker called, then Gordon Griffin, Borough and Township solicitor. The phone back had the hook. Bob Mooney lit a cigar.

"You get a little bit of everything here. This morning I went over some purchasing items with Chief McCrohan. The police department needs an alternator for the detective's car. The radio drains the battery. We went over it and settled on a price. We also talked about a payroll matter.

"A woman called a while ago. Her sister stuck a dime in the parking meter and got a parking ticket. Some joker had crossed out the "No" in "No Dimes" on the meter. So I called the meter maintenance men."

"I talked to the superintendent of Buildings and grounds about the repairs of the front porch here at Borough Hall. I'm secretary of the Trustees of Thomson Hall, so I keep an eye on the building."

"Things have changed since I first came here. The tax rate has gone from $3.61 to $7.02 per $100 of evaluation."
The phone rang again.

And so a day goes. Agendas, reports and budgets; conferences with department heads; the Mayor and Councilmen; residents. Users? He's been hospitalized twice.

WATERSHED DAM BEGUN
In Hopewell Township.
An 18-acre lake is being constructed in Hopewell Township as the fifth of nine conservation projects undertaken by Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association to conserve water resources and curb erosion and sedimentation.
"The lake is being built under the supervision and financing of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, but there are 18 different federal, state and local organizations contributing in some way," said Paul Van-

BUSINESS In Princeton

HOME SITE OPENS

In Lawrence Township, Pine Knoll at Lawrence, a 33-home development on Princeton Pike in Lawrence Township, will open this Thursday. The development is being built by Pine Knoll Construction Corporation.

The site is a mile and a half from Lawrenceville, four miles from Princeton and six and a half miles from Princeton. It was formerly a nursery specializing in trees most of which the developer plans to retain.

The homes will be in split-level and two-story colonial design. They will be priced at $24,000 and $25,000 and may be purchased with a ten percent down payment.

The split-level is an eight-room home and has a plantation-style front portico with five columns. It contains four bedrooms, two and a half baths, family room and outdoor patio. The kitchen includes a windowed breakfast area.

The two-story colonial is in the formal center hall tradition and features a wood-burning fireplace in the family room. It also has eight rooms, including four bedrooms, a kitchen with breakfast area, two and a half bathrooms and separate laundry room.

A new elementary school has been built on the grounds. The Lawrence Shopping Center is a mile away. Other schools and churches are in the immediate area. The site is 120 feet above sea level, one of the highest points between New York and Philadelphia.

Builders of Pine Knoll at Lawrence have been constructing homes in Princeton for the past five years. Their custom homes in the Lake Carnegie area were in the $30-$50,000 bracket.

LIGHTS REDUCED

On Radio Towers, The Nassau Broadcasting Company has announced the reduction by two-thirds of the power of lights atop six towers for radio station WHWH. The reduction was made after the company obtained modification of its construction permit from the Federal Communications Commission.

As a result of the modification, the company said, only one of the towers will now have dual 500-watt flashing beacons. Each of the others will have a 100-watt non-flashing beacon. The change was made by a tower crew late last week, the company said.

For Branch Bank. The First National Bank has announced that it has completed a program of enlarging its capital by $600,000 to permit the expansion of its facilities to meet the ever-increasing requirements of the Princeton community.

With the additional funds paid in by the stockholders, the bank is proceeding with construction of its new East Nassau Street Branch at 370 Nassau. This will be Princeton's first drive-in bank, with ample parking in the rear.

The board of directors is also developing plans for the renovation of facilities at the main banking office to meet the increasing requirements of customers in the central area of the community.

(This is the first of a series of four articles on Princeton football prospects for 1962.)

Picture is Bright. Football strength in entering classes runs in cycles, and it was wholly logical that the bonanza crops which 1960 and 1961 produced at Princeton were followed by a dearth of good material in the Class of 1962. Actually, it was much weaker than even the law of averages should dictate, proving in the long run to be the poorest football class at Princeton since 1935.

For three straight seasons the Tiger coaching staff adjusted for this weakness: compensating, in order, for virtually no added strength at the sophomore level, then seeking to blend a second composed primarily of sophomores and seniors and, finally, to make up in sophomores and juniors and virtually nothing in the way of three-year veterans.

Now, that weakness has at last been translated into a plus in pre-season estimates of Princeton strength, so much so that the situation will not be duplicated in years to come.

• Only 11 lettermen graduated—in contrast to normal carrying close to 20. Of the 11, four saw action on little more than ten percent of the total plays last fall.

• Only two of the 11 starting positions were at last hard hit by graduation, and only four members of the 1961 team were in at the kickoff for the climactic November games.

• The entire starting backfield returns intact, and lettermen are available at every position save right end. Seven positions are two deep or better.

Here and there throughout the Ivy League, other teams will begin with optimism because their losses, too, are lighter than usual. This applies at both Harvard and Dartmouth—in fact, there is good reason to believe that the November 24th game between the Indians and Princeton will decide the league championship as it has on several occasions since the Ancient Eight went formal in 1956.

The Tigers are, however, off to a better start in this respect PAST AND PRESENT. Ed Weihenmayer (left), captain of last year's football team, and Dan Terpack on the occasion of the latter's election to lead the 1962 eleven. Coach Dick Colman's smile will carry over into the new season—losses by graduation are lighter than at any time since the war.

than any of their rivals. Rebuilding must be done, and it will take time, but because the task is markedly simpler this season than in other years, a faster start and ability to remain in the title chase to the very end are anticipated developments for the 1962 season in Palmer Stadium.

By positions, these 11 players have been lost by graduation.

Ends: The one spot on the team which lost heavily when the Class of 1962 departed from Princeton was the line. Frank Large, the only all-Ivy selection from Princeton a year ago, will be very difficult to replace on the left side. He saw action in almost 50 percent of the total plays, was a good pass receiver (9 for 145 yards), line blocker and solid on defense. Jim Hunter, just a step behind Large in total action and credited with catching 11 passes—two for touchdowns—is also gone. Olin West, promising but sieved early in October by an injury, and Allec Zink, not frequently used, round out the quartet who must be replaced.

Tackles: Only one, but he was good. A third-string back as a sophomore, Andy Conner switched to tackle, earned his letter as a junior and was a top stand-out last fall. His 215 pounds of eager ability will be distinctly missed.

Guard: Again, only one, but in this case a fine captain who provided leadership in a degree rarely achieved. Ed Weihenmayer was often a member of the "walking wounded," as Charlie Caldwell used to term injured players cleared for action, and he was sufficiently banged up that he played well under half the time. But he provided clear-cut ability when he was on the field and deserved much credit for the fact that the Tigers went farther last season than was logical in view of the combination of injuries and inexperience.

Center: A trouble spot for the Tigers ever since the three-year reign of Frank Svec-tecz. Two players who remained almost two-thirds of the season's plays between them have graduated, and the position looms as the number one trouble spot for 1962. Gone are Bob Vandervoort and Phil Carlin, who were active, respectively, on offense and as line-backer. No stand-out two-way prospect is currently in sight.

Backs: It is in this department that Princeton is as well set for the season. Only three players in the entire Class of 1962 finished their careers as backs on the football team and one, while extremely valuable as a defensive specialist, could only be used as a "wild card." That was Roger Holt, who handled virtually all the punt-charts, averaging a good 34.7 but seeing action on only 142 plays. A shoulder injury ended his career as a triple-threat tailback.

Penn Laird, who came along well as a senior, served as John Henrich's principal reserve at quarterback and a replacement for him is essential. Graduated, too, is Charlie Phillips, a three-year wingback who spent much of his final year on the bench 1957 because Dan Terpack and Jim Rockenback, the mighty mid-fielders, were a wacked one-two punch ahead of him.

(Next week: The Sophomores.)

STANDINGS SHUFFLED. But ETS Stays On Top. First-place Eastern College Testing Service strengthened its hold on the bench 1957 laddered in the Business Soft-ball League last week with a pair of victories. Engineering Research Center moved into the runner-up spot with an overtime triumph and Gulton Ortholog won a pair to jump from fifth to third in the standings.

RCA Laboratories lost in extra innings, the defeat dropping it from second to fourth in the close race. Absorbing a pair of losses each were the tail-enders, Columbia Carbon and Engineering Research.

ETS began the week with a 7-3 victory over Electro-Mechanical Research in the make-up of a postponed contest. Winning hurler Jack Dilworth was backed by four double plays. Don Giovannozzi collected the game's only home run.

Dilworth raised his record to 7 and 1 the following night with a five-hit victory over Columbia Carbon. ETS came up with eight saves in ending down the 4-3 decision.

test of the season, a nine-inning affair, by shoving over three runs in the top half of the second round and then slaving off a two-run RCA rally that died with the tying marker on third. Ron Kline was the winner, Art Hahn the loser.

In another overtime affair, Opinion Research almost recorded its first victory of the season when it took Engineering Research into the eighth inning, tied at 8-8. But the ERC attack broke loose for six runs in the top of that frame, the cellar-dwellers could retaliate with only two but it was a 14-10 final. Roger Cole, Bob Easton and Don Machusak homered for the victors; Joe Castora had a four-for-four performance for ORC.

A make-up game between ORC and Gulton went to the latter, 14-8, as Ted Blank coasted home with the win following a nine-run fifth. Fred Guerini, Ed Klumner, Paul Roberts and Ron Kline had three hits apiece.

Fine relief burling by Steve Voris in his pitching debut gave Industrial Reactor a 14-8 triumph over Columbian Car-bon. Coming on in the fourth with the score tied at 7-7, he held the losers hitless over the final four rounds and was supported by a six-run rally by his teammates in the top of the sixth. Herb Smith singled, tripled and homered for IRL.

Electro-Mechanical Research took a 16-10 slugfest from Industrial Reactor with Dick Kandrae the winning pitcher. Vince Crivelli homered for the winners, who dropped to fifth place despite the victory because Gulton picked up a pair of games during the week.

On their way to the finals, the Whelan-Daves team ousted Mr. and Mrs. James S. Thornton and Mrs. Wallace McLean and A. E. McVitty. In the other half of the championship bracket, Mrs. Hans G.
